

Polymatech Group

Dear Suppliers,

Our Policies about Conflict Minerals

”Conflict minerals” are minerals in terms of Gold, Tantalum, tin, Tungsten mined in Democratic Republic of the Congo and its neighboring countries, amidst them which become the lucrative sources of the local armed groups and rebel forces. In the U.S. Law regulation and the guidelines from the international organization OECD related to “Conflict minerals”, it is requested for the origin inspection to confirm that “Conflict minerals” are not included in the final products and in the entire supply chain.

In order to fulfill our corporate social responsibility within the procurement activities, Polymatech Group has the initiative in promoting that not to use the “conflict minerals” listed above.

With the initiative, we would like to have your agreement about not to use “conflict minerals” as well, and we wish you to cooperate with us on the inspection we implement.

Please participate in the action to support us to construct a global supply chain without using any “conflict minerals”, and we really appreciate your help.

Thank you.

Best Regards,

May 13, 2013
Polymatech Japan Co.,Ltd.